

Bone McAllester Norton is thrilled to welcome Stephanie Taylor! Stephanie specializes in entertainment law providing a broad range of legal services to clients, including copyright law, music publishing, record labels, media and general business matters. She represents recording artists, songwriters, producers, managers, music publishers, promoters and music industry entrepreneurs.

Prior to joining Bone McAllester Norton, Stephanie owned her own law firm, specializing in the needs of the entertainment industry. In addition, she was a professor of music business at Middle Tennessee State University and also directed the Recording Industry Exchange program with Russia.

Stephanie is a classically trained violinist and country/bluegrass fiddle player. Her musical career has included 8 years as a contract violinist with the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra in Lincoln, Nebraska and she has played with numerous musicians including Grammy nominated Chris Young, award winning singer/songwriters Billy Yates and Billy Falcon, bluegrass talent Dana Romanello and country duo Joey + Rory. She was recently inducted into the South Dakota Old Time Fiddlers Hall of Fame.

Bone McAllester Norton founder and chairman, Charles W. Bone, was honored for making a difference at the 40th Annual CommunityNashville Human Relations Award Dinner. He was honored along with Ellen and John Tighe, Rev. Neely Williams, Gail Kerr and the Jewish Federation of Nashville and Middle Tennessee.

"The annual Human Relations Award Dinner is one of the biggest and most important events in our city recognizing outstanding individuals whose commitment to human rights makes Nashville a better place for all of us," said co-chair Art Rebrovick.
